Physicians Postgraduate Press in the 21st Century

Our focus is on lifelong learning. The eye that you see above—our new logo—reflects our continuing commitment to this focus.

Over the past 60 years, through the efforts of our superb editors and creative staff, bolstered by the encouragement of our readers and commercial supporters alike, we have become an indispensable resource for you, our readers. As the 20th century ends, Physicians Postgraduate Press is a trusted source of information for psychiatrists and now primary care physicians worldwide.

Our eye is trained on the evolving field of CNS research. Our focus is to provide the hundreds of thousands of health care professionals with information to use in caring for the tens of millions who suffer from the distress of psychiatric disorders. As has the field of psychiatry, we have grown through the past 6 decades, creating an ever expanding family of educational tools. Today, we offer audiences around the world impactful publications, original multimedia productions, stimulating live and enduring CME activities, and a Web site brimming with useful information.

We ask that you, our valued readers, also focus on our efforts and provide suggestions and insights to help our company meet the needs of our ever growing audiences. Thus, together, we will shape the vision of improving patient care and increasing the understanding of mental disorders.

With your help, Physicians Postgraduate Press will continue to be in the frontline of CNS research by helping to translate that research into the clinicians' vernacular. Our eye is on the future and our vision is trained on helping our readers to improve their practice of psychiatry in the 21st century.
